Title of the Extension Activity: "Value Education Classes for Social Development at a Spiritual Center"

Preamble of the activity:

In today's fast-paced era, it is necessary to inculcate moral values in children from an early age to ensure their overall development. This includes instilling childhood values, youth values, and social values. The educational background of students entering higher education is rooted in constructivism. There is a need to provide children with experiential, community-focused knowledge alongside theoretical knowledge to foster their holistic personality development. Integrating moral values with virtuous practices to prepare students for maturity has become essential. For the past six years, the Marathi Department of the college has successfully implemented the "Value Education Classes for Social Development at a Spiritual Centre" as a free social initiative in rural areas where devotion and service activities are conducted.

Objectives:

1. To introduce children to moral values through medieval Marathi prose and poetry literature.
2. To instil social values in children at devotion and service centres in rural areas.
3. To nurture ethical and intellectual values in each child through selected teachings from five devotional traditions.
4. To develop understanding, appreciation, analysis, and evaluation skills by fostering life-related values.
5. To study Marathi culture and identity.

The "Value Education Classes for Social Development at a Spiritual Center" are held every Sunday by the Marathi Department and its students at various spiritual service centers, including Shri Swami Samarth Seva and Spiritual Center Dhanore Panchkroshi, Loni, Kolhar Budruk, Kolhar Khurd, Rampur, Tulapur-Nimber, etc. Along with the curriculum, activities related to Indian culture such as recitation of hymns, mantras, shlokas, prayers, aarti, daily services, Indian culture, and Marathi identity, as well as linguistic, intellectual, and physical activities for the overall development of children are conducted.

Extension Activity Report

Good conduct is not possible without values. To cultivate good character and behavior, it is the responsibility of every parent and teacher to instil values in children at the right age. Recognizing this, the Marathi Department at Satral College has been successfully running a free social development initiative, the "Value Education Classes for Social Development at a Spiritual Center," since 2018 in rural areas engaged in devotional and service activities. These classes introduce children to traditional values through medieval Marathi prose and poetry. Social values are instilled in children at rural devotional and service centers. Efforts are made to nurture ethical and intellectual values in children through selected teachings from five devotional traditions. By developing an understanding of life values through value education, children enhance their comprehension, appreciation, analytical, and evaluation skills. The teachings of Marathi culture and identity highlight the importance of ancient Indian culture.

The "Value Education Classes for Social Development at a Spiritual Center" are held every Sunday by the Marathi Department and its students at various spiritual service centers, including Shri Swami Samarth Seva and Spiritual Center Dhanore Panchkroshi, Loni, Kolhar Budruk, Kolhar Khurd, Rampur, Tulapur-Nimber, etc. These spiritual service centers host 210 children, teenagers, and young adults who participate in weekly value education courses. Alongside the curriculum, activities related to Indian culture, such as recitations of hymns, mantras, shlokas, prayers, aarti, daily services, as well as good thoughts, moral stories, festivals, and information on agriculture, environment, and health, are conducted. Linguistic, intellectual, and physical activities are included to foster the overall development of children.

Spiritual literature and spiritual service centers act as workshops that repair the mind, promoting thoughtful content that can easily bring about changes in societal mindsets and instill proper values in children, parents, and youth. Spirituality, as taught here, contributes to public education and social enlightenment, inculcating ethical and life values within family systems.

The value education classes conducted at spiritual centers reach out to children, parents, and youth, addressing human issues, transformation, enlightenment, and various aspects of nation-building through scientific criteria in simple, accessible language. These classes provide in-depth, substantiated, and relevant analysis on topics like religion, society, language, literature, art, culture, education, history, geography, science, justice, ethics, economics, medicine, and environment. Essentially, these value education classes are all-encompassing and interdisciplinary. Since transformation of thought is a key component of these classes, they challenge the intellect. The scope of childhood value classes extends beyond the spiritual center, touching all aspects of life, making it a movement. Therefore, the enlightenment from these classes addresses religious, individual, and modern value systems.

The primary goal of value education classes is societal transformation. New ideas consistent with human values are introduced. Efforts are made to reject ignorance, superstitions, and outdated unwanted traditions in favor of building a new society. Value education classes are held to bring about profound changes in social life. Given their focus on social and cultural elements, these classes comment on aspects related to people's lives. The inspiration of value education classes is to present logical, science-based thoughts that not only influence others but also compel them to act.

Outcomes:

1. Conducting value education classes at spiritual centers will enrich family systems and society.
2. Educational components of value education classes will enhance students' study habits and reading culture.
3. Value education classes can help eliminate irregular lifestyles, meaningless stress, bad company, unlimited expectations, and mobile addiction.
